PREFACE.

THE CALLIOPEAN SOCIETY was founded in the month of July, 1819. It was composed, at its origin, of thirty-one individuals attached to the collegiate department of Yale University, who were led by a similarity of tastes, and a desire of obtaining better opportunities for improvement, to leave the two societies then in existence, and establish themselves in a separate body. Their prospects at first, from various reasons, appear to have been exceedingly gloomy; but through their own perseverance, and that of their successors, the association was soon advanced to a high degree of prosperity. Once started, it has since continued to progress, in all its interests, with a rapidity highly encouraging. During the twenty years of its existence, its Hall of Debate has undergone divers repairs and decorations; the room which contains its library, several advantageous alterations; and the number of its volumes has increased in a flattering ratio; all tending to prove the zeal and attachment of its members. Four catalogues of the library have been issued at different intervals, from which may be gathered its relative size. The whole number of volumes in 1819, was 369; in 1828, it had increased to 2,300; in 1831, to 2,910; in 1837, to 4,112; and it amounts, at present, to near 5,000. Its shelves were enriched, in 1835, by Napier's Encyclopedia Britannica, and other valuable works, procured directly from London: and it challenges competition, if not in numbers, at least in character and comeliness, with the libraries of both the older societies.

Among the names of its members, but few, perhaps, may be recognized, as of very high distinction. The society is of much too recent a date, to be able as yet to boast of the laurels won by her talented sons ; nor has she coveted the hollow reputation, of marshalling upon her catalogue, a host of brilliant characters, who have never honored her walls with their presence. No person can be admitted a member, without passing through the regular form of initiation.

By a long established custom, which appears now to wear the sanctity of a law by prescription, but few inhabitants of the New England states have offered themselves as candidates for admission ; and, of consequence, the whole number of the body has been always smaller than that of its two sister associations. This defect, (if defect it can be styled,) has been amply compensated by that oneness of feeling, which has ever distinguished the Calliopean Society. The sympathies, which are naturally fostered within its precincts, are stronger, deeper, more lasting, than those of a mere college acquaintance. They have followed the graduate into the world ; they have called forth expressions of lively delight as he has reviewed the hours which were there spent ; the hopes there cherished ; the impressions there made ; the germs of future improvement there developed ; and have always served as a passport to friendly intercourse between the members, when chance has thrown them together in the active pursuits of the world. It is to perpetuate and extend these pleasing relations ; to add another thread to the chord which binds together, both the absent and present ; to introduce them all to a common "friendship and acquaintance," at least by name, that the following catalogue has been issued.
